San Diego Author Wins National Award

San Diego, CA—Aug 20, 2013—Andrew Ballard, press agent for author Tim Turner, announced today that Mr. Turner is a winner of the 2013 Beverly Hills Book Awards for his recently published book, Questions...Directions To Who You Are. Turner's book won Book of the Year for the Inspirational category. In addition, Tim was honored as one of the five Beverly Hills Book Awards' prestigious President's Choice awards. Andrew Ballard said, "Tim has had a passion for inspiring people for most of his professional career."

Ellen Reid, spokesperson for the Beverly Hills Book Awards, said "We are so very proud to announce our 2013 winners, including Questions...Directions To Who You Are. These books truly do embody excellence, and will be a favorite on bookshelves for years and years to come."

Tim Turner was originally motivated to author his book when he managed broadcast sports sponsorship sales for the Seattle Seahawks, Mariners, San Diego Padres and San Diego Chargers during his 17 years at KIRO Newsradio, the CBS broadcast affiliate in Seattle and XTRA Sports 690 in San Diego. Tim commented, "Working with the coaches and players of professional sports franchises led me to develop the concept of 'Questions.'"

The book contains 52 thought-provoking reflections, each inspired by single words. Turner's book helps readers get their values and priorities in the proper order and to live their lives accordingly. The book has also won the National Indie Excellence Awards, International Book Awards and the Paris Book Festival Award. Questions was also recently released in an audio CD format.
